DETAILED ACTION

Acknowledgment of Papers Received: Request for Continued Examination dated 2/11/05

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1,6,7, and 11-13 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the combined disclosures of Seymour (USPN 5,225,401 hereafter '401), Flynn et al (USPN 5,095,110 hereafter '110) and Jerzewski et al (USPN 5,009,344 hereafter '344). The claims are drawn to a tablet comprising fosinopril sodium and zinc stearate as a lubricant.

4. The '401 discloses tablets for treating congestive heart failure (abstract). The tablets comprise well-known ACE inhibitory drugs such as Captopril and fosinopril sodium (abstract).

Art Unit: 1618

The tablets include fillers such as lactose and starch and lubricants such as stearic acid and magnesium stearate (col. 4, lin. 50-58).

5. An artisan of ordinary skill would be aware that magnesium stearate would not be advantageous to a fosinopril sodium formulation as seen in '344 (Example 16). With this knowledge an artisan of ordinary skill would choose stearic acid or an equivalent as the lubricant for the ACE inhibitory formulation. As shown in '110 it would have been well within the level of skill in the art to substitute zinc stearate for the stearic acid of '401 (col. 16, lin. 16-20). Since all of the lubricants are well known to artisans of ordinary skill, their selection, elimination and substitution would be well within the level of skill in the art. Barring a showing of unexpected results, it is the position of the Examiner that this substitution would be determined through routine experimentation.

6. Regarding the claims reciting specific ranges, it is the position of the Examiner that such limitations would be within the level of skill in the art to obtain as well. Applicant is reminded that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, it is not inventive to discover the optimum or workable ranges by routine experimentation. See In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454 105 USPQ 233, 235 (CCPA 1955).

7. Furthermore the claims differ from the reference by reciting various concentrations of the active ingredient(s). However, the preparation of various compositions having various amounts of the active is within the level of skill of one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention. It has also been held that the mere selection of proportions and ranges is not patentable absent a showing of criticality. See In re Russell, 439 F.2d 1228 169 USPQ 426 (CCPA 1971).

Art Unit: 1618

8. With these things in mind, it would have been obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill to substitute the zinc stearate of '110 for the zinc stearate of '401 following the motivation to avoid magnesium stearate provided by '344. The artisan of ordinary skill would have been motivated to do so in order to provide a stable tablet capable of treating heart disorders. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to follow these motivations and teachings with an expected result of a stable tablet capable of treating cardiac disorders.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
